Dear Glen,
(Goa properties)

As agreed from the outset, the property was handed over to your management company on the clear understanding that:

1. The property would be occupied by young football players from the academy, for the majority of the year (approximately 8–9 months), and for the remaining period, the property could be used for short-term lets such as Airbnb. You requested a specific insurance, which I took out at my expense .
2. It therefore came as a complete surprise when I was informed that since November 2025 your management company has allowed a family on benefits from Luton to occupy the property, without discussing or obtaining prior consent from me.
3. This is a serious breach of trust and a clear violation of our agreement.
4. More importantly, I have no consent from either my lender or my insurance provider to allow tenants on benefits.
5. Allowing such occupancy puts my loan and insurance at risk of being voided, which exposes me to significant financial and legal consequences.
6. I trust you understand the seriousness and criticality of this situation.
7. I cannot and will not take the risk of continuing this arrangement.
8. Therefore, the first and immediate step must be for you to ask the current occupants to vacate the property as it is not admissible by the lender or insurance provider.
9. As per your own management contract, if there is a serious violation of the agreement, only one month's notice is required.
10. Based on the above, Notice is hereby given that in one month from this notice, I need possession of my property.
11. You must reinstate the property to the condition in which it was given.
12. Failure to adhere to my notice will result in leaving me no option but to escalate to MK trading standards, the property ombudsman and Luton City council who placed the tenants with you without confirming the legality of the agreement between you and I.
13. Please confirm once this has been done .
14. This notice is given on Sunday 25 January 2026.

Thank you.

Kind regards,
Suraraj Pradhan

Suraraj/Anesh,

I write in response to the notice served requesting that my company hand back the property with one month's notice.

I must state clearly that I do not agree to the validity of this notice.

At the outset of our agreement, the property was occupied by a football academy, for which there was a confirmed booking of approximately ten months. You were fully aware of this arrangement and of the nature of the occupants. During that period, the academy experienced growth in numbers and subsequently made a commercial decision to relocate to a larger property. Upon securing alternative premises, they provided me with two weeks' notice, at which point they vacated.

As you are aware, my business model has always encompassed both short-let accommodation (including Airbnb-style use) and emergency/temporary accommodation. At no point either prior to or during the tenancy was it ever stated , discussed, or agreed that the landlord did not permit this use or that consent would be required to pursue these avenues. Had such a restriction existed, it would reasonably have been raised and documented. It was not.

Following the academy's departure, I remained contractually liable for rent. In those circumstances, it was entirely reasonable and commercially necessary for me to consider my other established business operations. There was no requirement for me to "cross-check" this with the landlord, as my agreement is to pay rent for the agreed term, not to seek approval for lawful use that had never been restricted.

Given the above, I reject the assertion that there has been any breach on my part that would justify a shortened notice period. Accordingly, I do not accept the one-month notice served.

If the landlord still intends to serve notice, this must be done strictly in accordance with the terms of our agreement, which clearly stipulate a minimum notice period of three months.

I trust this clarifies my position. I remain open to constructive dialogue, but any further steps must align with the contractual terms agreed by both parties.

For completeness, I must also address the suggestion that the property has been damaged. This is not the case. The property is currently untidy, not damaged, due to the current occupant having a large volume of personal belongings that are in the process of being organised. There has been no neglect or misuse of the property.

Any movement in the floorboards is entirely unrelated to my guests or my company and is consistent with installation-related factors such as how the flooring was laid, natural expansion, or insufficient expansion gaps. This is not guest-caused damage. Both the landlord and ourselves are aware of the significant improvements we made to the property at the outset of the agreement, and you personally observed the uplift in standard. It is therefore unreasonable to suggest that I would fail to maintain the property to the same level.

Minor fixings, such as holes in the walls, are the result of television mounts something you were fully aware of and, as with all such items, these will be made good in full upon the conclusion of the agreement, exactly as the property was handed. Matters arising from ordinary use, installation factors, or temporary untidiness do not amount to damage and do not provide any basis for alleging breach or justifying an accelerated notice period.

Attached is proof of the booking we had and should any further proof be required around the notice they proved to cancel the remaining of the booking these can be provided.

Regards

Glenn

Hello Glenn Amofa (Goa Properties),

Thank you for your response. Whilst I acknowledge receipt of your letter, I do not agree with its contents.

As was made explicitly clear at the point the contract was signed, the property was to be used for short-term lettings only. This was discussed and agreed in advance, and I was specifically advised by you to obtain insurance appropriate for this type of letting. You must be aware that at the moment my insurance does not cover this type of letting and in the absence of valid insurance, I cannot be held responsible for any issues or liabilities.

Both my mortgage conditions and insurance policy strictly prohibit lettings to tenants in receipt of benefits. Any arrangement outside of the agreed short-term letting us places me in breach of these conditions, which is unacceptable.

I do not wish to waste any further time debating the matters raised in your letter. Accordingly, in line with the terms of our contract, I hereby give three months' notice to terminate the management agreement.

The contract will therefore terminate on 2 May 2026.

At the end of the notice period:

- The final rental payment is to be made in full, and
- The property must be returned in its original condition, in accordance with the terms of the agreement.

Please confirm written acknowledgement of this notice and the termination date.

Thank you.

Kind regards,
Suraraj Pradhan

Hi Glenn,

As you requested in your previous email, I served three months' notice in accordance with the terms of our contract to terminate the agreement from 2nd of February 2026. You confirmed that you would notify your tenant accordingly.

As of today, 16 February 2026, I have not received confirmation that your tenant has been informed of the termination. This is concerning, particularly as the notice period is already in effect.

Please provide written confirmation within 48 hours that your tenant has been formally notified. If I do not receive confirmation within that timeframe, I will instruct my letting manager to inform your tenant directly of the termination of our agreement, as per the contractual notice served.

I would prefer to resolve this matter professionally and without further escalation, and I look forward to your prompt confirmation that this has been actioned.

Kind regards,
Suraraj Pradhan
